Demystifying Jicama at Flyleaf Books

The Painted Fish and Other Mayan Feasts
An edible memoir from the back roads and beaches of the Yucatan
Sonja Lillvik

Do not let the playful, commanding cover of The Painted Fish and Other Mayan Feasts make you think this is a lightweight book. It certainly is not; rather, it is a serious, accessible, and beautifully designed and executed memoir and cookbook about an historic part of our hemisphere.

Sonja Lillvik writes with enthusiasm, alternating tales of her life in the Yucatan with do-able and mouth-watering recipes—that she has now made her own and will share with us at Flyleaf Books on March 6, 2010 at 2:00 pm. Sonja will be assisted by Phil Campbell, former owner of the Flying Burrito, when she presents Demystifying Jicama, a scrumptious light appetizer.

Join us for a taste of the Riveria Maya and take home a copy of the 192-page gift book which is beautifully designed and printed in four colors with French flaps, and glossy lamination making it a treasure both inside and out.
